

PHYSICIANS are close observers of the motor movement. They use horses for business purposes, and no one knows better than they the disadvantages of the horse in constant use. They are an intelligent class, and are watching developments with an appreciative and critical eye.